

Vaastu Science/Architecture:

There is a team ready to come together (they will also work independently of each other) to locate, design and develop these centers in the ancient science of Vaastu. It is a complete and all encompassing science which covers every aspect and detail of site planning, building design, and construction.

“Vaastu is now known to be one of the oldest and most highly developed spiritual sciences still existing on the earth. It appears to have been the foundation for other highly developed sciences and civilizations in ancient times. It is also reputed to be a universal science: the full understanding of Vaastu includes the understanding of interdimensional travel through time and space. It also includes the Language of Light, and such a language is actually the natural emanation and expression of light and sound from within Time and Space.

1. The qualities of the magnetic grids will be checked
2. The correct or optimal site(s) for the buildings, group of buildings, community development will be analysed and precisely located
3. The flora, fauna, certain soil factors, environmental factors, water aspects including the direction of underground water flow (very important energetically) will be analyzed
4. Correctly orients the buildings, community (roads, etc.), and other relevant factors with the terrestrial and celestial grids for maximum connection and energy or life force within the building spaces.
5. The layout of the buildings and community will be designed for maximum connection with all multi-dimensional energies and the dynamics of pure consciousness (spiritual science includes quantum physics, nuclear physics, and astro physics), etc.
6. Specializes in the layout of the structures(s), communicating with Mother Earth, the devic energies, etc.; the laying of the sacred Corner Stone at the precisely chosen time for maximum connection with source energies (it is possible to bypass relative times and energies and connect the structures or community directly with Source Consciousness).
7. Universal harmony and creation energies will be maintained throughout the construction process.
8. The ‘appropriate’ building materials will be determined.
9. All fields of service will be assisted in bringing the timeless and universal science of Vaastu

The optimal building site will be located. This includes understanding the natural magnetic grid system of the planet, etc. which varies very widely in its various qualities. This also includes orienting (east/west, north/south) the building(s) directionally with the grid to optimize the energies and life forces within the finished structures(s). This orienting is usually fine tuned within about 1 degree of accuracy.

Locating the building site also includes determining other environmental factors which may influence the ultimate qualities of energy of the finished building(s). These factors include the type, species, and qualities of the soil, flora, and fauna; it also includes the relationship of trees (especially large ones) and other similar features to the planned building and the natural effects which may result. Tests also include the direction of flow of the underground water in its relationship to the building as well as directional relationships of the surface water (these relationships can have a very marked impact upon the qualities of the finished building). The direction(s) of the land slopes on which the building(s) will be located is also very impactful in different ways and we will analyze these and other potentials of the site.

The building designs will be brought within the sacred geometry of Vaastu. The result is called a "Living Building". A building which pulses with energy and life force is alive and conscious in a similar way as a human being is. An "Alive" building always includes a central sacred space which is the nucleus or generator of the life force (the living building is a macro atom as well as a micro universe); this is also the "heart" and "lungs" of the building.

The exact dimensions of the building(s) in order to precisely define the wave length and frequency will be fine tuned. Through this definition the wave length of the building will be assisted to vibrate in harmony with universal frequencies, as well as in more specific ways for specific desired qualities within the structure. This is called "Music stilled in architecture". This alone is a major key to the "healing energies".

An optimal date for laying the Corner Stone will be chosen in order to define a very positive and desired energy within the new building structure. If desired, there is access to specific dates which allow us to bypass relativity and tune directly into the Central Sun or Creative Source energies. Vaastu building inspection will insure that the principles of sacred geometry are carried out accurately and correctly throughout the building process; the construction process is as important as the design process."
